It is a crime for public officials and employees to contract with the units of government they work for or represent. It is a misdemeanor for an employee who is involved in making or administering a contract to derive a direct benefit from that contract.

- The statute applies to any kind of contract. The law applies to purchase orders; service contracts (including payment for using companies or facilities owned by a public official or employee); employment contracts; leases, sales and purchases of real and personal property; and any other type of contract through which the public official or employee, or their spouse, obtains any of the three types of direct benefit as defined in the statute.

- A violation of the statute is a Class 1 misdemeanor and renders the contract void. Up to 120 days in jail and fines. Prosecutions under this statute are rare, but a violation definitely makes headlines. If the contract is void, the unit has no authority to expend funds under it.
